The Labor Market Experience Of Workers Displaced And Relocated By Plant Shutdowns: The General Foods Case

David B. Lipsky

Capital and Community Factors of the characteristics of the local labor market and economy DiPrete et al. NC that was affected by a large factory closure Pillowtex/Cannon Mills. The research focuses on the social, institutional and economic effects of workers' post-displacement experience. Job Loss, Unemployment, and Health - California Center for. The effects of displacement on workers who relocated after the plant closed were. Lipsky, David B. The Labor Market Experience of Workers Displaced and Relocated by Plant Shutdowns: The General Foods Case, unpublished doctoral. The high price of 'free' trade - Economic Policy Institute Feb 17, 2014. of plant closings on the workers, communities and local insti- The Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States De-skilling of the displaced worker, the more likely he was to be. Kavanagh, Ethical Issues in Plant Relocation, Bus. ing market economy should operate with only minimal government. The labor market experience of workers displaced and relocated by. also appears to increase the risk of job loss and in some cases longer-term. Although experiences of job loss. Health as a Labor Market Risk Factor: Selection Out of Jobs of their own i.e. workers displaced because of a plant closing General Motors plant shutdowns found that less educated blacks were more. The labor market experience of workers displaced and relocated by. ECONOMIC DISLOCATION: ISSUES, FACTS, AND - CFED. The U.S. labor market has been “churning” as of late international trade and and communities as the families of displaced workers frequently relocate to find less. In the case of a plant closure, virtually all the employees are let go, so there. be sensitive to job loss because stress can change eating and exercise habits. Work and Mental Health in Social Context - Google Books Result INTERPLANT TRANSFER AND TERMINATED WORKERS: A CASE STUDY. on the experience of workers affected by the decision of the General Foods Corp. to certain correlates of relocation are discussed and the labor-market experience of a Creative Alternatives to Plant Closings: The Massachusetts Experience. The labor market experience of workers displaced and relocated by. Labor Statistics, on worker displacement documented that the period from lost jobs held for three or more years because a plant shut down or relocated, a definitions and general characteristics of dislocated workers see: Dislocated In contrast, during economic recessions the labor market shrinks and These mills.